LAST CHANCE FOR ROMANCE

13 x 30'

Right now, thousands of couples are in crisis.

Juggling the demands of work, children, money, and family leaves little time to spend nurturing an intimate relationship. No wonder romance is hard to keep alive!

In each episode of Last Chance for Romance, we meet a couple at a crossroads, looking for one last chance to save their relationship.

After jetting them away from their daily worries to some of the world's most beautiful tropical resorts, our host, television personality Cheryl Hickey, and renowned couples therapist, Joe Rich, help each couple navigate a difficult and emotional journey to improving their relationship, or as Joe says, "getting to better."

When the couple arrives, they unpack their luggage - and the emotional baggage they brought with them. They share their problems and why this may be their last chance to save the relationship. But we'll also hear about what brought them together and how they fell in love in the Remembering Romance segment of each episode.

The couple also spends time just having fun and enjoying the beauty of the location. Whether sailing, diving, playing golf or tennis - a little relaxation goes a long way to bringing back the joy in a relationship. Candlelit dinners and strolls on the beach also offer our couples the chance to rekindle romance.

While they relax and reconnect, Joe uses a mix of analysis, humor and common sense to get to the heart of their issues. He prescribes therapeutic activities designed to challenge the deeply rooted attitudes and behaviors that are hurting the relationship.

As each episode unfolds, Joe and Cheryl discuss the progress being made and the couples reveal their candid feelings in daily video diaries.

At the end of each program, the couples reveal their true feelings about the experience - and each other - and Cheryl gets Joe's final thoughts on their progress and his prognosis. The couples also get a quick "check up" to see whether, months later, Joe's prescription has provided the cure they were seeking. Did they succeed in rediscovering romance? Or have they come to the realization that their relationship is not "meant to be"?

Last Chance for Romance reveals the private and personal journey of two people trying to decide to stay together or go their separate ways. Along the way, viewers will gain some critical insights into their own relationships that will give them a better chance at a long and happy life together.
